POPULAR BARTENDER CONTEST.

Magnificent Solid Gold Watch or Diamond Locket Goes to the Winner.

Name _____

Address _____

Contest Closes January 1, 1897.

BARTENDERS—Cut coupons.

MURDERS, suicides and deaths on the football field make a long list of tragedies for the closing of the year 1896.

THERE are a few bartenders who have an eye on the valuable trophy offered for the most popular drink mixer in the United States. But the man who wins will have to keep moving in order to get there.

DO you want a gold watch or would you prefer a diamond locket with a stone of unequalled brilliancy? You may have your choice if you come out a winner in the bartenders' contest. Get in and win. It is a fair proposition for any sport.

MANY of the lights of the legitimate stage are flocking to the tall timber of the vaudeville stage to get the high-priced salaries which are lurking there. The result is that the variety shows are getting better and better every minute, and the Rialto is through with the mediocre actors, who have been crowded to the wall by gilt-edged, high-priced talent.

IF any one should ask you, you might say, with truth, that as a sporting paper the POLICE GAZETTE is really the only publication of its kind in the field which gets the news and gives it to its readers in decent, readable shape. There may be other weeklies, but we have never heard of them—probably because they are circulated privately and the editions are limited. If you want to keep in touch with the game of sports as it is played nowadays, you will have to get the GAZETTE.

MASKS AND FACES.

Corinne Knows What She Will Do With Her Money.

ENDOW AN ACTRESSES' HOME

Teddie Du Coe Has Invented a New Fad
That Will Make a Hit.

DIAMOND ON HER FINGER NAIL.

Corinne, who for years was known to the theatre-going public as Little Corinne, but who has passed that period long ago, while in San Francisco, recently, made her will, and by its terms when she dies every bit of her personal property, jewels and theatrical costumes, will be sold for what they will bring. It is believed that the amount she will leave will foot up to at least $750,000. With this money a large-sized tract of land is to be bought near New York city, and upon it will be erected "The Corinne Home for Aged and Unemployed Actresses."

Her idea is that the home should be opened so that actresses can go or come as their necessities dictate.

All religions and all nationalities will be welcome. The home will be sufficiently endowed, but made, as far as possible, self-supporting by means of gardens and sewing that the women may do.

Corinne wants it to be in all senses a home, and her idea is to save girls who cannot find other employment from falling into sin. This may be all right for aged actresses, but soubrettes out of work will have no use for it so long as there is a Rialto.

Teddie Du Coe, a young woman with shapely legs, a ravishing smile and a pair of wicked eyes, is about to have the nail on her left forefinger beautified by a diamond. The gem will not really be set in the nail, of course, but will be attached to a gold band which clamps securely about the upper edge of the nail. The "harness" can readily be removed to admit of the nail being trimmed. Strange to say, her press agent, it she has one, does not yet know of her new fad.

And she gets such a large salary, too. But her friends say she found the diamond at 1 o'clock the other morning on Broadway.

John W. Hamilton, who last summer had charge of the American and Casino roof gardens, is now managing Hammerstein's winter roof entertainments. Hammerstein seems to have the knack of getting hold of clever men.

Talking about rats reminds me of a good thing that clever team, now at Tony Pastor's, the Midgelys, get off.

The male Midgely has a bottle of wine in his hand which he is about to drink.

The female Midgely says to him: "Don't drink that. There is Roush on Rats in it." He looks at it for a moment, then remarks: "Well, I am troubled with rats."

They do say Marie Halton has aspirations towards grand opera. She has been a frequent visitor at the offices of the Abbey, Schoeffel & Grau Company of late, and has hinted to her friends that she might not be long on the comic opera stage. Just what roles she may sing does not appear at casual imagining.

Camille d'Arville is not singing any more at Hammerstein's in "Santa Maria," and strange to say the opera is still going on and the box receipts haven't fallen off a dollar. She probably thought when she left Oscar that within forty-eight hours there would be a sign of "To Let" on the marble facade of Olympia.

"Pauline's Caprice," by the famous Zola. No. 5 of FOX'S SENSATIONAL SERIES, with 140 illustrations drawn by French artists. Sent by mail to any address, securely wrapped, on receipt of price, 50 cents, by RICHARD K. FOX, Publisher, Franklin Square, New York. 149 Fleet St., London, E. C.

and those who know say she had a messenger boy detailed on the spot to see whether the old man himself or his son Arthur nailed up the sign.

How disappointed she must be, especially when she knows that Miss Alice Rose, who took her place, has made a hit.

Ada Deaves, who has been very prominent in Henderson's Extravaganza Companies, is at the Pleasure Palace. She appears as "the colored bicycle girl."

Alma Earle will produce her new specialty in the last act of "A Railroad Ticket," opening at the Grand Opera House in Washington, Thanksgiving week.

Laura Clement and Jessie Villars have formed a partnership and will shortly do an operetta called "The Alsations" at the Pleasure Palace and on the Keith circuit.

Eben Plympton and Agnes Proctor will make a complete tour of the Keith circuit. Mr. Plympton feels so elated at his success in vaudeville, that he has begun to rehearse several new one-act plays for the Keith houses.

Cissy Fitzgerald is out with another press notice. This time the young man who attends to that branch of her business announces that her wink muscles are damaged and that she is continually winking at everybody she meets when she is out. You see something had to be done to revive interest in that wink, because it was becoming very much of a chestnut and had quite worn its welcome out. But after all there is no real reason why Cissy should continue to inflict upon us that suggestive old wink and that vulgar swishing of petticoats which she calls a dance. She is a period of the play's engagement, Miss Eytling gives one or more pupils lessons in dramatic art. William Owen, who is starring successfully in Canada and the Northwest, is one of her pupils, and she has also instructed the three young actresses prominent in his employ—Maude Baker, of Detroit; Antoinette, of New Orleans, and Adele Ripont, of Buffalo.

Daisy Scheler, a dancer, brought suit last week to recover $900, for breach of contract, from Carl and Theodore Rosenfeld, managers of the Lilliputians. The dancer says that she was engaged for thirty-seven weeks, commencing Sept. 28, but was discharged Oct. 17, because she destroyed the costume of a ballet girl in tearing it off, the garments having caught fire from an electric wire on the stage of the Star Theatre. The Rosenfelds aver that the dancer has misstated the reason of her dismissal.

They say on the Rialto that the Casino fairies have taken to wearing diamonds since they returned from New Haven. Those girls in the Moorish building always were an extravagant lot and they never could keep a cent.

If Fanny Gillette is lucky she will have $734 before long. She was leading lady of the "Fair Rebel" company, and she says she has been done out of her salary. The wife of the author was the "angel" of the show.

The little fox terrier which plays such an important part in "Jack and the Beanstalk" had to undergo more rigorous training than any other member of the company. A professional trainer was employed to assist in the dog's education, and besides the regular rehearsals it had to have private lessons. It is the property of Carrie Perkins, who did a large share of the work of drilling. The opening night of the burlesque in New Haven a party of students in the front row of seats tried their utmost to give the dog stage fright. They chirruped to it, said "rats" and other irrelevant things, but the terrier, who was engaged in sitting upright, merely glanced over his shoulder at them with an air of pity for their ignorance and went on with his part. He has no understudy, and should he fall ill the Casino must perforce be dark until he recovers.

Pauline Cornfeldt

—I came near spelling it Cornfed—who was a ballet dancer in Rice's "Evangeline" company, went to the French Consul's office in New York the other day and asked to be sent home to France. She was brought to this country by the inventor of the aerial ballet, and she swears she was half starved and ill-used.

Another phenomenal child singer is about to appear in vaudeville. This time it is a little girl, fourteen years of age, who is to make her debut soon at Keith's Theatre. The maiden's name is Margaret Hensel, and she is a full-fledged New Yorker, having been born and bred in this city of star makers. Unlike others of her sex, she is not a stage-struck miss, having rather an aversion to theatrical glory. The little girl not only sings like a lark, but is a wonderful mimic, and dances all the intricate steps of the professional cloggit and butterfly specialist. She will just about sing one song and then a Gerry agent, will have her by the neck.

Borro's "A Mystery of Venice," a new sensational drama in five acts, by Harry Thompson, which at present is being played in the West with immense success, will shortly receive its Metropolitan production. From what we learn it is strong in situations, climaxes, replete with comedy, etc., and upon its initial performance in this city should be received with as much favor, if not more, than some plays we have witnessed of late, as it is one of the strongest companies that have appeared here in some time, it is under the management of Jos. Borro.

Virginia Harned is going to be named as a co-respondent in a divorce suit brought by a society woman against her swell husband.

That was the first notice.

The next one came a few days later.

Virginia Harned has just become engaged to Edward Sothern. The wedding will take place next summer.

Was it the co-respondent business that precipitated the engagement?

Oliver Byron, supported by that most clever comedienne, Miss Kate Byron, are at the People's Theatre this week with a new drama, "The Turn of The Tide."

No one would expect to see so much original and good matter in a melodrama as David Higgins, author of "The Plunger," has put into "The Turn of The Tide" for Oliver Byron. Situation after situation follows in quick succession, and comic and serious stage business is so happily commingled that we cry now and roar with laughter before the tear can be wiped away. Byron has a great play.

nice-looking woman, plump, pleasing and all that sort of thing, and she would stand a chance of making a hit even if she didn't wear those tights that do not conceal.

It was recently stated that Amy Van Dyne had succeeded Mignonette Curtis in "A Parlor Match." Fisher Curtis says that this was an error, and that his wife is still playing the part, in which she appeared in New York, and that Miss Van Dyne is understudy.

A well-dressed woman went into the Columbus Theatre one evening recently, and demanded to see Oscar Hammerstein, saying:

"I have traveled 300 miles to see him; the Lord has sent me! I have an invention I want him to see!" She was escorted out by a policeman.

Zelman Rawlston is hard at work perfecting arrangements for the production of her new sketch, "Yale Mixture." In it she impersonates a young Yale student. A special setting will be used, showing the apartments of a swell student, who has a liking for fun, music and song. Miss Rawlston will introduce banjo and piano solos and her usual budget of character songs.

At Philadelphia recently a jury decided in favor of Julia Marlowe-Taber in her suit against Frank Howe, Jr., manager of the Walnut Street Theatre, to recover $3,806.50 due for a four weeks' engagement in March, 1895. Manager Howe had contended that the plaintiff had broken her contract by using the name, Julia Marlowe-Taber, instead of Julia Marlowe on the bills.

One of the oldest and largest theatrical families has added another to the profession in the person of Little Queenie Warner, who made her debut as Milly in "Shore Acres" recently. She is only four years old, and scored a hit.

Rose Eytling, who is very successful in the part in "The Great Diamond Robbery" originated by Madame Janaschek, pursues her system of dramatic instruction on the tour. In every city, according to the

SLAVIN HAD ENOUGH OF IT

Beaten by Bob Armstrong in Four Rounds.

THEY MADE A GAME FIGHT.

"Parson" Davies' Protege Promises to be a Pugilistic "Comer."

TWO GOOD PRELIMINARY BOUTS.

Lack of condition and inability to withstand the onslaught of a young and more vigorous opponent resulted in Frank Slavin's defeat last Monday night, at the Union Park Athletic Club, of New York. Four rounds of what was intended to be a twenty-round encounter was sufficient for him, and when he held out his hand as a token of defeat, Bob Armstrong, the black Hercules of the West, was hailed as the victor. Armstrong, who is a protege of "Parson" Davies, gives every promise of making his mark in the fist arena. He is but 22 years of age, stands 6 feet 3 inches and is put together like a giant. He is quick, shifty and clever, and the hard punching he took in the first two rounds bore eloquent testimony of his ability to stand the gaff.

During the four rounds the affair lasted there was nothing lacking in the way of entertainment. The men punched at long range, punched at short range, clawed, pulled each other around on the ropes and fought wildly.

In the first round Armstrong was a little timorous about beginning proceedings, but a light punch on the nose from Slavin's left and a stiff right in the stomach awoke him to the responsibilities of his position. He then forced Slavin on the ropes and landed a swinging left-hand punch on the latter's head with force enough to raise a lump on the "Cornstalk's" cheek. The latter fought back wildly, and the "darkie" had a lot of the best of the exchange. They clinched in the middle of the ring, and in the breakaway Slavin banged away at Armstrong's body. The latter came back boldly. He was evidently beginning to appreciate the fact that he had a chance to win, and sailed right into Slavin with left and right, doing a lot of damage, when the gong sounded.

Armstrong came up fresh for the second round while Slavin was perceptibly wobbly on his pins. The "Parson's" protege opened the ball with a left-hand lead on Slavin's nose; they clinched, and after the referee had broken them apart Armstrong backed the Australian into a corner and planted his left on the neck and his right on the body. The latter slipped and went down but was up again in an instant. Condition was plainly telling in the darkie's favor. He countered Armstrong's leads and occasionally smashed the latter on the short ribs, making the latter wince. The round ended in Armstrong's favor.

The third round was conspicuous for rough slugging on both sides. Slavin began by coming in on his dusky antagonist, but the latter straightened him up with a straight punch on the nose which opened an ugly gash. Slavin evidently realized at this juncture that his only chance of winning was with a knock-out blow and he whipped his right across to Armstrong's jaw, but the latter was nimble and cat-like upon his feet and cleverly avoided them or took them lightly. Once in his eagerness to end the proceedings summarily, Slavin swung one at Armstrong's head which landed and left a lump as big as an egg behind his ear. Slavin was plainly showing signs of weakness and a light punch on the jaw staggered him. They clinched and were broken repeatedly while the spectators howled their approval. When the gong sounded Slavin was in distress and seemingly dazed.

Armstrong went right at him when the bell brought them to the centre of the ring. He landed his left and right repeatedly on the jaw and chin sending him to the ropes. He tried to stem the tide of defeat and fought back wildly. He clinched in an effort to recuperate, but Armstrong never let up on him once as he realized that victory was within his grasp and a couple of sturdy raps on the mouth and nose plainly convinced him that he was bested, and instead of squaring off for another rally he stepped up to Armstrong and offered his hand which Armstrong grasped and shook warmly.

Slavin was seconded by Paddy Gorman and Ted Alexander and Joe Chyniski and Tommy West looked after Armstrong. Sam Austin, of the POLICE GAZETTE, was the referee.

In the preliminary bouts Hugh McWinters got the decision in ten rounds over Andy Watson, of Boston, and Kid Madden, of Brooklyn, and Paty Broderick, of Providence, fought a draw.

JEM MACE IN NEW YORK.

The Veteran Champion Arrives on the Etruria For His Bout With Donovan.

The steamship Etruria, which reached this port last Saturday, brought that distinguished Nestor of latter-day champions, Jem Mace. There was a time when the simple announcement of his anticipated arrival would have blocked Broadway with a hurrying crowd, eager to look at the champion pugilist of the world; the shiftest man who ever put up his hands in the twenty-four foot ring.

But no crowd impeded his progress now, for Jem has not fought anybody for years. He has devoted himself to the gentle art of how to grow old and look young.

He is as great a master of the art as he was at his earlier art of putting men to sleep with his fists.

At Smith, who has undertaken the arrangement of a six-round glove contest between Mace and Mike Donovan, who was for years the middleweight champion of America, met the old-time champion at the pier and took him to the Gilsey House. In some mysterious way word soon went round that Mace was here. Fighting men and followers of the ring came in by dozens and shook his hand and told him how well he looked. He was delighted to see them and chatted as blithely as a schoolboy.

Suddenly there was a stir as a white-haired, pink-cheeked man came striding briskly through the crowd. Mace smiled broadly as he caught sight of him approaching.

"Well, Mike, old boy," exclaimed the Englishman, rising and grasping his hand, "how in the world are you? How've you been, eh?"

Mike Donovan's face had about six smiles on it.

"Jem, old boy," he said, "I'm glad to see you. How are you?"

They sat at opposite sides of the table.

"We'll make some of the young uns open their eyes, eh?" said the Englishman. "I've been training three months for this go."

The two veterans leaned back in their chairs and smiled at each other. They made a striking picture. Mace is sixty-six years old, but does not look a day more than forty. His keen, gypsy eyes twinkle mischievously. His shoulders are broad and his cunning arms are long and thick. He has biceps as big and hard as any blacksmith's. His waist is slender. His legs are of proper roundness and sturdiness for a fighting man. He looks as though he is good for twenty years more of giving and taking hard knocks. He weighs 182 pounds net.

CORBETT SIGNS THE AGREEMENT.

To Box Fitzsimmons at Coney Island on Jan. 14 for a $26,000 Purse.

So far as Jim Corbett is concerned it is a settled fact that he and Bob Fitzsimmons will meet in the ring at last. At Boston, on Friday, he affixed his signature to articles of agreement for a contest of twenty rounds or more at the Greater New York A. C. on Jan. 1 or Jan. 14, whichever Fitzsimmons prefers. The contest is to take place for a purse of $26,000, the winner to take all. Corbett especially requests in the contract that the contest take place on New Year's Day. The management of the club, however, has fixed the date for the afternoon of Jan. 14.

There was considerable wire-pulling before Warren Lewis secured Corbett's signature, but as the offer of Mr. Lewis was the best that had yet been made it was finally accepted.

Mr. Lewis returned to Brooklyn from Boston on Saturday with three copies of the contract signed by Corbett in his pocket. He was jubilant at his success, but said he had had great difficulty in getting the affair clinched.

He received the following despatch from Fitzsimmons while in Boston:

SAUSALITO, Cal.
We want to be able to guarantee a finish contest, if possible, but should no better offer come by the 25th of this month will accept your offer, but should both men be on their feet at the end of twenty rounds the contest must continue. We will win this contest all right.
MARTIN JULIAN.

Mr. Lewis said: "Fitzsimmons will undoubtedly accept. His telegram shows that he has a disposition to meet Corbett at last, and every sporting man will be glad of it."

Mr. Lewis sent off the contracts to Fitzsimmons for his signature. One of the contracts belongs to the club, another will be retained by Fitzsimmons, and the third will be mailed to Corbett.

One clause in the contract, and the most important of all read, as follows:

"It is hereby further agreed that the president of the above club shall, as soon as these articles are signed, deposit with Al Smith $5,000, to be divided equally between the two contestants in case the club shall not be able to pull off the contest on the date set, and that each contestant shall deposit $2,500 with said Al Smith, as a guarantee for his appearance at the club on the appointed day, and if either man should fail to appear at the stated time, his $2,500 forfeit shall go to the other contestant appearing, and if both should fail to appear, the said club shall receive both forfeits."

The Greater New York Athletic Club arena is located at Coney Island and was formerly occupied by the Seaside Athletic Club.

PRINCETON TIGERS WON.

Old Eli's Sons Beaten in the Great Struggle.

FOOTBALL IS THE GAME.

Fifty Thousand People Witness the Clash of Brawn and Muscle.

PRINCETON SCORES 24 TO YALE'S 6.

Amidst a waving field of yellow and black and the yells of thousands of leather-lunged enthusiasts, Yale's downfall by Princeton was accomplished. The annual football battle took place on Manhattan Field last Saturday, and when the record of the game was summarized into figures it showed that the Tigers had placed 24 points to their credit, as against 6 for their antagonists.

For long months, and in some cases for years, the mimic warriors have been preparing for the fray, and it is no such make-believe fray, either. Thousands of dollars have been expended, and the self-denial practised by the aspirants for the honor of contending in the teams cannot be overestimated. After the men had been finally selected, every move of every one of them, whether individually or as a team, has been heralded far and wide. The hero of a long run down the field, with the leather ball tightly clamped under his arm and a dozen mighty opponents striving in vain to block his progress, feels an elation at the time that it is not likely Major McKinley felt when the wires ticked off the news to him that he had been elected President of the United States.

The gates of Manhattan Field were not opened until noon, so the early ones were doomed to line up against the wall or seek solace in the neighboring places of rest for the thirsty, miserable or joyful.

Thirty thousand people gathered within the enclosure, and twenty thousand more on Deadhead Hill and the viaduct which overlook the ground. But finally the auspicious moment arrived and a great cheer rent the air as Capt. Murphy came tumbling through the little gate at the northeastern corner of the field, followed by Eli's brawny line and backs, and the air fairly shook with the plaudits of their admirers. Rousing as Yale's reception was, however, it by no means equaled that accorded the Tigers when they put in an appearance three minutes later.

The officers for the game were, McClung of Lehigh, referee; Dashiell, Lehigh, umpire; Garfield, linesman. It was 2:10 o'clock when they threw up the coin for the great struggle. Yale won the toss and took the east goal. This gave the ball to Princeton.

The serious business of the day now began and amidst almost a death-like silence the teams lined up with the ball in position for "Play."

The line up was as follows:

Yale.	Position.	Princeton.
Bass	Left end	Brown
Murray	Left guard	Crowley
Chamberlain	Centre	Galley
Chadwick	Right guard	Armstrong
Murphy, Capt.	Right tackle	Hildebrand
Conner	Right end	Cochran, Capt.
Pinckney	Quarter back	Smith
Benjamin	Right half back	Kelly
Hine	Left half back	Bannard
Hinke	Full back	Baird

Baird kicked off to Hine at the 10-yard line well out of bounds. Baird kicked to Hinkey, who returned to Kelly, who was downed on centre line. Baird punted and the kick was blocked.

Yale got the ball on Princeton's 50-yard line. Yale got five yards for off-side play. Yale then tried to buck the centre twice, with no gain. The Princeton line stood like a rock and the Orange and Black got the leather on her own 40-yard line on downs.

Bannard failed to gain through the centre and Baird punted. Hinkey returned the punt to Bannard at Princeton's 40-yard line. Bannard again sent the pigskin flying down the field to Fincke on Yale's 40-yard line.

The blue line held firmly while Benjamin went around Brokaw for a fine run, landing the ball on Princeton's 35-yard line. Murphy tried to push through Hildebrand, but no gain resulted. Yale then got five yards for off-side.

This was followed by another five yards for the same cause. This placed the ball in Princeton's 25-yard line. Hines was sent against the Orange and Black centre but he could not gain an inch. Attempts at Princeton's centre failed, and Princeton got the ball on downs. Baird punted and the ball was blocked by Rodgers. The ball rolled over the goal line and Bass fell on it. This made the first touchdown for Yale in seven minutes of play. Hinkey kicked the goal. Score—Yale, 6; Princeton, 0.

Then there was a scene which no description could do justice to. An ocean of blue waved in the air and the yells and shrieks of joy which emanated from the sons of Old Eli were like a bedlam turned loose.

On the kick off Baird kicked over the goal line. Hinkey returned the punt and Baird again punted to Hinkey, who was downed on Yale's 20-yard line.

Hine made three yards around Cochran's end. The Yale crowd cheered enthusiastically as Benjamin tried Princeton's right tackle, but no gain resulted.

Murphy was injured at this point, but continued to play. Bannard, by successive end plays, carried the ball to the 35-yard line. Kelly went around Bass for five yards. At this stage of the game Yale seemed unable to hold the Tigers, whose superior weight was telling heavily in the mud. Church tried Murphy, but made no gain. Kelly gained around left end and the leather was on Yale's 30-yard line.

Benjamin's beautiful tackle saved a touchdown for the time being. Kelly ploughed through the centre and landed the ball within three inches of Yale's line. Baird was then pushed over for a touchdown, despite Yale's most strenuous efforts. Time of touchdown, 12 minutes. Baird kicked a pretty goal. Score—Yale, 6; Princeton, 6.

Yale was absolutely unable to withstand the repeated assaults of the brawny Tigers on their line, and Eli's rooters looked almost as blue as their favorite color. The Princetonians seemed fairly to revel in the mud. Bannard made four yards through Murphy, whose side of the line seemed perceptibly weaker.

Time was taken on account of Murphy, against whom most of the Princeton attacks had gone. He soon resumed playing. Kelly went through Yale's centre for a pretty five-yard gain. Again time was called for Murphy, whose injured shoulder seemed to trouble him greatly. Dr. Hartwell tried to induce him to leave the field, but he persisted in going on with his playing. Hartwell, after a long argument finally got him to retire, and Durston took his place at right tackle. Play was resumed and Bannard went through the centre for two yards. Kelly again circled Conner's end for a five-yard gain. The ball was then passed to Bannard, who went around Bass for a ten-yard gain, landing the ball on the end of the southern edge of the field.

It was at Yale's 30-yard line. Hine was injured on the play and Mills took his place. The Princeton line again braced itself and forced Bannard through Yale's centre for four yards. Kelly went around Conner's end again, and it was still Princeton's ball within 23 yards of Yale's goal line.

With the ball within ten yards of Yale's line Kelly made two yards through the centre. Bannard took the ball through Murray for four yards more. The ball was then within four yards of Yale's line. Bannard next tried Yale's centre, but failed to advance. On the next attempt he landed the ball within four feet of the line. The Princeton team, by a united effort, then forced Kelly over the line for another touchdown. Baird kicked the goal. Score: Princeton, 12; Yale, 6. Time, 11 minutes.

After the usual intermission play was resumed in the second half with Princeton at the east goal. After a series of evolutions with the ball flying up and down the field Kelly made four yards through the centre. Bannard carried the ball within a foot of the line around Bass. Yale forced the Princeton men back a foot on the next play, and then Hildebrand went around Baird's end for a touchdown. Time of touchdown, 9 minutes' actual play. Baird failed to kick the goal.

Score—Princeton, 16; Yale, 6.

Darkness began to gather now and it became a question whether the full time of the second half could be played, but it was, but before the end came Princeton had scored two more touchdowns, from which no goals were kicked, leaving the final score—Princeton, 24; Yale, 6.

A LETTER FROM KID MCCOY.

Kid McCoy has changed his mind about coming back to America. An interesting letter from him, written at Johannesburg and received at the POLICE GAZETTE office, is as follows:

JOHANNESBURG, Oct. 15th, 1896

As I have almost recovered from my recent illness I have made up my mind to have a fight in this country, so I will not leave here on Nov. 4th as I stated in my last letter to you. I again sign articles to fight Bill Doherty on Dec. 23d, Kansas week, for $5,000 a side and the championship included. Tom Duggan, who took my place on a fortnight's notice, was counted out in the fifth round, and Doherty did not have a mark on him after the fight. So now the sports here are all "swelled up" on Doherty and are laying 5 to 2 on him beating me. Doherty is a first-class man and I expect a hard fight, but if I can only get in good condition in this country I think I will be able to beat him, if not I will not do worse than draw. We are to go twenty rounds at 156 pounds, and I expect a "free house," in fact a larger "gate" than Smith and Goddard.

I have made a good many friends since my arrival here, who will back me quite heavily the week of the fight, providing I am in good condition. The country is overrun at present with Australian fighters—"out of work, too." I am teaching boxing at present and have a nice lot of pupils, including some of the best on the Rand.

If victorious with Doherty I shall leave here in January, in time to make a fight in America before the warm season sets in. Hoping I will not be disappointed, and to soon be with you all again, I remain your friend,

CHAR. MCCOY.

HOW A WIFE WAS TRAPPED

She Was Met at the Jersey City Depot by Her Husband.

HAD BEEN WITH ANOTHER.

And Had Enjoyed a Regular Honey-moon in the South.

A VERY SENSATIONAL STORY.

There are a good many domestic dramas on the boards just now, but the most sensational one of the year occurred the other day at the Pennsylvania railroad in Jersey City, upon the arrival of the Limited express from Washington. The characters were a swell society man and his secretary, the society man's beautiful wife, her maid and her gentleman friend. The wife, her friend and her maid had come on to Jersey City from Washington, and were unexpectedly met by the husband and his companion.

The story really begins at Washington, where the handsome woman and her maid stepped aboard the express. The woman attracted more than a passing attention, and as she walked through the Pullman there wasn't a man aboard who didn't turn his head and look after her. She paid no attention to any of them, but settled herself comfortably in the seat which had been assigned to her, while the colored maid took a seat close by. As the train pulled out of the Washington depot the handsome woman exchanged a few words with her maid and then gazed pensively out of the window. Later she took up a novel and turned over the pages in a listless fashion.

Those who were watching the fair traveller came to the conclusion that she had something on her mind, but it did not occur to them to connect her with the presence of a man who had also entered the Pullman at Washington and taken an unobtrusive seat several sections behind the object of so much curiosity. He was tall and massive, with a straw-colored mustache, stylish clothes and the air of a man of the world. But those details were not observed till later.

It was not until the train left Baltimore that the association between the tall man and the swell woman became apparent. Then the man left his seat and approached the woman. She didn't seem to be at all surprised. Neither did the maid. For a moment the two conversed in low tones, then the woman told the maid to take a seat further away. For the remainder of the journey the man and the woman seemed to enjoy each other's society very much indeed. They talked earnestly all the time but they seemed to be very troubled about something.

When the porter began to collect the baggage and help the men into their overcoats, the woman became more agitated than ever. She clutched her companion's arm with a nervous gesture when they arose to get out at the Jersey City terminus.

The colored woman, too, seemed to scent trouble, for she brought up the rear with an air of officious solicitude and a pugnacious gleam in her eye. Passengers in Pullman cars are never inquisitive, but the fellow passengers of the handsome couple watched their movements and awaited developments. Developments followed quickly enough. No sooner had the little party reached the station platform and started toward the ferry than two men rushed toward them. The woman uttered a slight scream and clung still more convulsively to her escort's arm, while he frowned darkly and tried to throw himself into a posture of self-defence.

One of the two newcomers was a tall man, with aristocratic features, wreathed at that moment in an ugly sneer.

"So I have caught you at last!" he said to the trembling woman. "I have been on your track for some time, and I know all about your recent adventures."

His voice vibrated with anger, but it was evident that he was making a strong effort to keep calm. He paid not the slightest attention to the crowd which gathered round the little group and drank in every word.

"You are not worth a divorce," he continued, bitterly. "I would not lower myself by lifting my hand to you, so you need not shrink behind your—your friend. All that I ask is that you return the jewels you have taken. Give me that bag you are carrying. Give it to me, I say!"

He held out his hand for the bag, but she put it behind her with a little cry.

At that the conversation became general and excited. The husband's companion, who had hitherto contented himself with glaring at the blonde man, now addressed the latter in terms of the deepest contempt.

"You dog! You cad!" he exclaimed. "If I were her husband I would kill you like a rat!"

As if to suit the action to the word, he raised the heavy cane which he was carrying and struck at the woman's companion. The blow landed on the blonde man's silk hat and glanced to his shoulder, and would have been repeated had not the husband interposed.

"Leave him alone," he said. "This is my affair and you have no right to interfere. This woman is not worth fighting about. Come away. I know where to find him when I want him."

"Yes, and you will find me ready at any time," said the man, quickly, speaking for the first time.

With this the actors in this domestic drama separated. The woman retained the bag her husband had demanded. The man, the woman and her maid entered the ladies' cabin of the ferryboat, and the husband and his friend went into the gentlemen's compartment. They evidently meant to renew the quarrel when they reached the New York shore.

The colored maid was the first to gain the street, followed closely by her mistress and the blonde man. On their appearance a liveried coachman ran forward and tried to seize the baggage which the maid was carrying. She clutched at her burdens and turned inquiringly toward her mistress.

"It's all right," said her escort, reassuringly. "He's my coachman."

Thereupon the maid yielded, and a moment later she and the other two were bundled into a brougham and driven off. The husband and his friend made no further protest, and hastened to remove themselves from the prying eyes of the crowd.

Later it came out that the woman had been married for five years, and that she had been previous to that a society belle of Virginia. Shortly after the marriage her husband began to hear queer stories which were being circulated about her, but as he had every confidence in her he failed to investigate them until one of his closest friends warned him that all the stories were true.

Even then he was somewhat skeptical and had several quarrels on her account, but after awhile he was forced to the conclusion that she did not always behave as a woman should.

Not long ago she left New York ostensibly to visit her people in the South. He suspected nothing until he heard she was in Washington. He at once went out there, and after a brief inquiry found she had registered at several hotels with a gentleman friend as his wife. When he learned that he came to the conclusion that she was not worth the price of a scandal, so he returned to New York.

He was informed when she left the capital, and as he had some business to settle with her he determined to

ELOPED ON A TANDEM.

In Order to Get Married a Young Couple Take a Long Ride.

FROM 'FRISCO TO STOCKTON.

An Enemy Said They Were Wedded in Real Up-To-Date Bloomers.

BUT THIS THEY BOTH DENY.

On a bright red bicycle built for two young Peter Calfe and Clara Burns rode from San Francisco to Stockton, Cal., early last week, and in the latter town they were married by a justice of the peace. It was an elopement, pure and simple, and neither the mother of the bride nor the parents of the groom heard of the marriage until a day or so ago.

When the mothers of the eloping couple finally heard of the marriage there was all sorts of trouble. Clara's mother doesn't love Peter and Peter's mother declared that the marriage should be annulled, as she wanted no connection with the Burns. They were not on calling terms with the Calfes, she declared, and the marriage her son had made would not be tolerated.

The groom is a son of a retired capitalist who is worth over half a million dollars.

When the bridal party reached Stockton they enjoyed a ride throughout the town on their wheels, the young lady attracting much attention because of her must sit well. "I don't know just why. It was because—oh I can't tell. No, the ride wasn't a tiresome one. We had a stretch of six miles of sand to walk through, though, and that was awful."

The young couple are living at present on Taylor street, just around the corner from the groom's parents' home.

FOUGHT FOR HER BABY.

[SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION.]

A sensational scene occurred on the street in Buffalo, N. Y., the other day, when a man grabbed a child from a carriage which was being wheeled by two women and started to run away. One of the women, who acted very quickly, caught him, and was just about to reach for the child when the man hauled off and with his free fist struck her a staggering blow in the face. Then he ran away.

The woman returned to her companion and the empty baby carriage. It was a pitiful sight and the brutal attack of the man roused the ire of all who witnessed the assault.

Behind the public display of a man assaulting a defenseless woman on the streets is a story of family trouble. The people are well known.

The man who took the child from the carriage and struck the woman while he was running away is a well-known business man of Buffalo.

The women were his wife and her aunt. The man and his wife separated some time ago, and he demanded the baby but it was refused him. Then he made up his mind to use force, which he did so successfully.

F. G. KOEGEL.

[WITH PORTRAIT.]

F. G. Koegel, of Pressel, Saxony, Germany, the long-distance pedestrian of the world, has probably covered more miles on foot than any other living man. In his entire career Koegel has walked over 24,000 miles. He has walked across the American continent twice and has just finished a trip around the world. For accomplishing this feat he was presented with a handsome gold medal (a picture of which is produced on page 13 of this issue) by Richard K. Fox, proprietor of the POLICE GAZETTE.

Koegel and his companion, Fred Thoenner, a German-American of San Francisco, made a wager of $6,000 to $10,000 with some sportsmen of the above city that they could make the journey around the globe in less than two years. They left San Francisco June 10th, 1894. Thoenner was taken sick in Europe and was unable to continue on the journey. This did not dishearten Koegel, for he traveled on and finished five days ahead of the time. He lost the bet, however, owing to the fact that he could not follow the route prescribed, American tourists and journalists being forbidden to enter Siberia since George Kennan wrote of the horrors of the Siberian mines, and the young pedestrian consequently had nothing but experience left.

While on his journey Koegel filled eight blank books with official seals, signatures, stamps and postmarks. The book contains signatures of many high officials, including American generals, governors and men of royal blood. One of the most conspicuous pages in Koegel's travel-stained books is that on which the autograph of Secretary Gresham is written and the federal seal of state is pasted. Others are those of Joseph Renais, the lord mayor of London, the Emperor of Austria, the King and Queen of Roumania and Prince Hohenzollern, the premier of Germany.

Among some of the countries through which the young German traveled are England, Portugal, Spain, France, Italy, Switzerland, Germany, Austria, Hungary, Serbia, Roumania, Belgium, Turkey, Russia, India, Naples, Siam, China and Japan. Koegel was compelled to run many risks while traveling through these countries and was often obliged to run for his life from the barbarous tribes who inhabit the uncivilized lands. Nevertheless Koegel says the sights he saw were wonderful and well worth the experience.

Koegel was the first European to travel through East Persia from North to South. He walked along the Afghanistan border south for 500 miles, through the great Persian desert, where he was compelled to endure many hardships to accomplish this feat, sleeping on the ground in the open air, and being unable to obtain food or water for days at a time.

He discovered a new mountain about 12,000 feet high, and named it the Globe Trotter mountain.

The most startling experience Koegel met with throughout his adventurous trip was an assault made upon him by a young tramp at Meshed, Cal., who tried to kill the pedestrian with a coupling pin. His assailant, Charles Thompson, by name, is now serving a two-year sentence for his malicious crime.

A. PIETSCHER.

[WITH PORTRAIT.]

Everybody who rides a bicycle knows that it requires something more than ordinary ability to break road records, and especially one that has been the target for wheelmen ever since the bicycle came into use. Credit is therefore due to A. Pietscher, the leading road rider of the Yorkville Wheelmen, who made a successful attempt to lower the New York and Philadelphia return record on Nov. 1. The entire time elapsed was 18 hours and 17 minutes. The previous record, held by Capt. Starbock, was 19 hours and 56 minutes. Mr. Pietscher has covered 6,240 miles since April 1 and is considered one of the fastest long-distance riders in Yorkville. He also won a handsome prize donated by the club for covering the most mileage on club runs.

BEAT THE HYPNOTIST.

[SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION.]

There was a sensational scene in Indianapolis, Ind., the other day, when two good looking young women, who had been working as the confederates of a professor of hypnotism, turned the tables on him and gave him the beating of his life.

One of the girls had permitted herself to be put in a coffin and kept there for two days.

"Why," said she, "I would have starved to death in that coffin had not an outsider carried me food. The professor promised to bring me wines and eatables, but not a mouthful did I get from him. Of course I was not mesmerized any more than you are this minute, and I suffered awfully, too. My stomach and nervous system are still deranged from the effect of lying in that hard box. It was my first experience of the kind, and there is not money enough to hire me to repeat it. He promised me money, but I had no idea how I should suffer. Just look at my lips and cheeks where he forced needles through them. The pain was simply awful and I came near fainting while he was doing it."

CORA DEUTSCH AND LILLIE D'AUBAN.

The two young women whose portraits are herewith presented are two of the best lookers in the famous aerial ballet at Hammerstein's Olympia, and they have helped to make this novel feature a grand success.

personal charms. There the lovers procured a license and were married by a justice of the peace.

"If my son is married," said the mother of young Calfe, "I know nothing of it. He has been going with a girl named Clara Burns, but I am sure he has not married her, for he would have told me of it if he had. If he has done so the marriage shall be annulled. He is not of age, and cannot legally marry. He is only in his twentieth year. He has never spoken of marrying. He left here on election day with a friend, riding a red tandem that he occasionally borrows, and got back yesterday. I do not know the girl or her family. They are no friends of mine. I don't want to know any of them, either."

Mrs. Burns was in a high state of anger. She said it was nobody's business whether her daughter was married or not. She was not at home—that was all she knew.

"You saw the old crank, did you?" was young Calfe's first statement when told that his mother-in-law had been questioned. "She's a virago and she hasn't any use for me. I don't care. My old man'll stand by me. He thinks I'm all right. Why did I run away to get married? For two or three reasons that are private. I didn't want this thing to get out for a while. I wish I'd gone to Europe; then no one would have known about it. My mother says I'm not of age, does she? Well, that's funny. I'm twenty-one, and don't you forget it. Where are myself and wife going to live? Right here in my parents' house—that's where. We ain't living there now, but we will all right. My father disinherited me? Not much he won't."

"Say, there's one thing I want to state. We weren't married in no bloomers. I had on the same clothes I've got on now, and my wife had on her regular clothes. I don't want anybody to think we'd go and get married in bloomers."

Young Calfe looks as if he might be anywhere from eighteen to twenty years of age.

"Why did I run away on a wheel to get married?" asked the plump young bride, on whom a bicycle suit

DECISIONS WHICH SETTLE WAGERS.

V. E., Jacksonville, Fla.—McKinley carried Kentucky.
O. F. P., Lynn, Mass.—Did Billy Vernon ever get a decision over Billy Egan?.....No.

D. W., Ansonia, Conn.—Where was Con Riordan buried?.....We believe near Syracuse, N. Y.

F. M., Fort Riley, Kan.—Jersey City is in the State of New Jersey and does not belong to New York.

Subscribers.—What is a royal flush?.....Any suit of five cards, comprising ace, king, queen, jack and ten spot.

B., Pine Bluff, Ark.—Please inform me of the amount of purse given Hall and Fitzsimmons by the Crescent City Club, of New Orleans.....$45,000.

F. D. B., Manington, W. Va.—In case a man makes a bet that McKinley carries Kentucky is the bet a draw if Bryan gets one or more electors?.....No.

W. S., Columbus, O.—Please inform me of John L. Sullivan. If I should write to him, where shall I direct the letter to?.....Care Police Gazette, New York.

A. A., Chicago, Ill.—I would like to know the outcome of the Corbett and Sullivan fight, whether Sullivan was knocked out or merely exhausted?.....Exhausted.

AAK, Brooklyn, N. Y.—A bet B that there has been improvements on Edison's phonograph machine in the last three years?.....Write to the Edison Company, Menlo Park, N. J.

C. D. H., Wymore, Neb.—In cases where the electoral vote of a State is split between McKinley and Bryan electors are bets that either one or the other would carry such State a draw?.....No.

F. A. B., Springfield, Mass.—Who is the recognized champion pugilist?.....The title is in dispute and can only be settled by the outcome of the match now pending between Corbett and Fitzsimmons.

McD. T., Milford Centre, O.—If you bet on 50,000 plurality for McKinley you lose. Barr votes are not counted for Bryan, but they count against McKinley in his plurality count over all candidates.

C. J. C., Ottawa, Kan.—A and B ran for Congress. A gets official majority in district of 800. B contests election. I bet A would be elected. Do I win?.....Depends upon the outcome of subsequent proceedings.

M. M. H., New York.—A bets B that McKinley will carry the State of Kentucky; there was nothing mentioned in regard to electoral votes; B claims that A loses because McKinley did not get 18 electoral votes?.....A wins.

W. K. N., Curry, O.—If A bets that Bryan carries Kentucky and nothing said about the electoral vote, and Bryan receives one vote and McKinley twelve, who wins the bet?.....B wins. McKinley carried the State by a majority.

W. W., Rochester.—A bets McKinley gets Kentucky; B bets Bryan gets Kentucky. Provided McKinley gets twelve electoral votes and Bryan one, does the McKinley man win or is the bet a draw?.....A wins. Majority decides.

D. S. F., Rowayton, Conn.—A bet B that McKinley would carry Kentucky, B taking the Bryan end; which wins or is the bet a draw owing to a division of the electoral vote of the State?.....A wins; it was not an even division of the electoral vote.

M. J. M., Rutland, Vt.—P. F. H. bet Mr. R. that Bryan would carry Kentucky, while Mr. R. bet McKinley would carry Kentucky. Now, as the vote stands, Bryan, 1 electoral, and McKinley, 12, which one wins?.....The man who bet on McKinley.

W. W., Canal Dover, O.—We would be pleased to have your decision in regard to the bets on 50,000 for McKinley. The question in dispute is: Are the votes cast for Barr on the Populist ticket counted for Bryan in regard to bets?.....No, but they count against McKinley's plurality over all candidates.

J. E. W., Tyrone, Pa.—A, B and C come in a barber shop, and A wants one particular barber and B says I want him, too. A had a chance to get shaved upon entering on another chair, and C gets shaved. Which then would be next on the barber's chair, who is at the time they all come busy, would A or B?.....A has first chance.

D. T. S., New Frankfurt, Mo.—A bet B that he could name twelve States that McKinley would carry, and in the twelve States named included Delaware. Now if Delaware gives McKinley only two of her electoral votes and if one goes to Bryan will A, who bet that McKinley would carry Delaware, win?.....Yes.

J. C. B. P., Philadelphia, Pa.—If a Scotchman comes to the United States and makes his home here but does not get naturalized and he has a son born here, when that son arrives at the age of 21 is he a citizen of the United States or does he require to get naturalized?.....Any native born male is a citizen. By proving facts of birth does not have to be naturalized.

J. J., New York.—A bets that the S. P. C. A., of New York city, after duly notifying the owner of a dog to get a license for same, can take the dog out of the man's house by showing an order from court; B says under no circumstances can they take the dog, but only fine the owner in court.....Write to the secretary of the S. P. C. A., New York, for full information on this point.

E. R., New York.—Let me know the record of both amateur and professional in a mile run. I have a good record of my own, and will not let it be known until I hear from you. I think my record will beat the world over. I am not known in sporting circles.....England, W. G. George, 4:12 3/4; America, T. P. Conneff, 4:15 3/8; All records in the "Police Gazette Sporting Annual."

PARRY SLICE, Dayton, O.—A bets B that he does not come within ten numbers of winning a watch in a raffle. B's number was ninth from the winning number. A claims he wins because it was not exactly the tenth number. B claims that all numbers from the winning to ten higher and also ten lower are within ten of the winning number, and therefore claims the bet. Who wins?.....A's excuse is that of a man who would resort to any subterfuge to avoid paying an honest bet. B wins.

SMALL FISTIC TALK.

A large number of out-of-town men witnessed the Choyanski-Maher battle.

"If I had as many wheels as Warren Lewis," says Charley White, "I would start a bicycle factory."

There is some talk of matching Joe Eims and Patsy Haley. This would be a grand contest of bantam pluck and skill.

A twenty-round match is on in New York between Joe Bernstein and Frank Patterson. They met a few weeks ago, and the result was a draw.

Johnny Gorman, of Long Island City, and Jack Downey, of Brooklyn, have been matched to fight twenty rounds at 128 pounds on Nov. 20.

Palmer and Plimmer are wanted in America, and it seems strange that they ignore such productive fields as this country now affords.

Charles (Bull) McCarthy, who has been under the weather for several weeks back, is all right again. He is willing to box any lightweight living; and as he always gives the spectators a run for their money he is not likely to remain idle very long.

Phelan, the featherweight boxer of the University of Pennsylvania gymnastic team, has returned to college and will again try for the team.

In a prize fight near New Castle, H. E. Stout, of Dover, known as "Beauty" McMahon, knocked out Fred Skelley, of Chester, in the sixth round.

George Dixon is training conscientiously for his bout with Frank Erne, and the impression prevails that the bout will not last longer than ten rounds.

Sam Fitzpatrick says that the talk Kid McPartland and his friends are having at the expense of Lavigne is not backed up by gold or any other kind of coin.

"Scaldy Bill" Quinn is going to San Francisco and will try to secure a match with George Green or Tom Tracey, of Australia, who is at present in the West.

Barney Farley wants to arrange a match for Jimmy Anthony, of Australia, with Jack Ward, Jimmy Barry, Pedlar Palmer or Sammy Kelly at 112 pounds.

Sam Fitzpatrick, who manages the clever Australian, Jim Ryan, wishes to match the colonial against Dick O'Brien at 154 pounds and will stake $1,000 on the issue.

"Spike" Sullivan, of Boston, and Larry Burns, of Cohoes, are matched to box ten rounds at the Broadway A. C. as a preliminary to the Dixon-Erne 20-round bout.

Choyanski's long hair isn't a bad idea. Short hair goes with toughness in fighters, and Choyanski's football locks were of use to him when he picked out a soft spot on which to fall.

There is some talk in San Francisco of matching Dal Hawkins against Lavigne. The latter will make the match if a suitable purse is offered and if Hawkins can secure a side bet.

George Green, the California welterweight, was offered a purse by the Olympic Club, of San Francisco, to box Joe Walcott, but Green drew the color line. The game was too hard for Green.

The Tuxedo Athletic Club of Philadelphia announces that efforts are being made by that organization to secure Kid Lavigne and Charley McKeever, of that city, for a 6-round bout early in December.

Johnny Murphy, of Boston, is waiting patiently for something to turn up in his line. Murphy wishes to engage in a 20-round bout with Jimmy Barry or any other bantam, before one of the local clubs.

A fifteen-round contest between John Drew, of the Indian Territory, and the "Terrible Swede" at the arena of the Pine Bluff (Ark.) Athletic Association on Nov. 18, was decided a draw by "Honest Joe" Burke, Well Known to Turfmen in Every Part of America.

Referee John Portis. The fight was a hard one—almost a slugging match.

A match will probably be arranged in a few days between Johnny Murphy, who recently returned to this country from England, where he was defeated by Pedlar Palmer, and Maxey Haugh, of Brooklyn.

Kid Lavigne and Owen Ziegler, the lightweight boxer of Philadelphia, who recently re-entered the ring, have been practically matched to meet in a 20-round contest at the Broadway A. C. the latter part of December.

Peter Maher is now as high with the followers of the heavy weights. Another year or two of experience, without indulging in any dissipation, will see Peter a much cleverer man in the ring than he is to-day.

Billy Plimmer has a wholesome respect for Pedlar Palmer, and cannot be coaxed into another match with him. The Olympic Club of Birmingham offered a $2,000 purse for them, but Plimmer declined the job.

Jimmy Anthony and Jimmy Barry may come together before long. There is likely to ensue a wrangle as to the question of weight. Anthony is willing to fight at 115 pounds, but Barry may insist upon a lower weight.

Jim Kennedy has this to say about McPartland: "If Erne defeats Dixon, or even loses, and Dougherty will make a side bet of $1,000, he will match Frank Erne against McPartland—the fight to be decided in private."

Dan Creedon wants to have a chance at Kid McCoy on that young man's return to this country, and he is afraid that the Kid will stop in London long enough to take on a bout or two, particularly one with Frank Craig.

Johnny Murphy, of Boston, says that he will return to England next month if he fails to catch on here. He is going to challenge the winner of the Kelly-Plimmer "go," which will be decided at Birkenhead next month.

Young Dempsey, of Cripple Creek, knocked out Jerry Haley, of Denver, in twenty-two rounds at Cripple Creek the other night. The fight was Haley's through twenty rounds. The next two went to Dempsey, who knocked Haley down repeatedly, finally putting him out with a left-hand swing. They fought for a purse of $200.

PURSES FOR MAHER AND DOOLEY OR RYAN.

"Parson" Davies Will Take Joe Choyanski Over to Fight Either of Them for the Purse and a Side Wager.

DICK BURGE EVINCES NO DISPOSITION TO FIGHT GEORGE GREEN.

Once more the POLICE GAZETTE's cable service has been utilized to advantage. While the laurel crown was yet green upon Peter Maher's brow and he was enjoying the first fruits of his incomparable success over Joe Choyanski, came a demand for his services from over the seas in the shape of an offer for him to go to England and box either Tut Ryan or Mick Dooley, of Australia, before the Olympic Club of Birmingham, or the New Beresford Club of London. A purse of $5,000 was involved, Maher being accorded the privilege of picking out his own opponent, and would receive $500 expenses for training, etc.

This information was duly communicated to the Irish champion and the first question he asked about was the date.

A cable requesting this information was sent to the POLICE GAZETTE branch office in London and the reply came back as follows: LONDON, Nov. 19.

Fox, New York.—Any date that suits Maher. About the middle of April at time for club.

"Well, I don't know about that," was Peter's hesitating rejoinder. "I'm matched to box Steve O'Donnell at Coney Island on Christmas day, but there is some uncertainty, I believe, about that steamship St. Paul on the Tuesday previous, and upon landing at Southampton went direct to London, and found his way to the POLICE GAZETTE office at 149 Fleet street. There he was received by Mr. Richard K. Fox and during the day a reception was held in his honor. Many famous English and American sporting men, now in London, dropped in to give him a welcome. A meeting with Plimmer, whom he is matched to box, was arranged to take place in a few weeks to settle the preliminary details, agree upon a date, etc., etc.

According to cable information, Eddie Connolly, the Boston lad, who is now matched to fight Tom Causser before the Olympic Club, Birmingham, on Nov. 24, is training well and is in good condition. He has his headquarters at the Prince of Wales Hotel, Kildham, where Kid Lavigne trained for Burge. Connolly sends a greeting to all his friends and says he is confident of winning. The battle is for $1,500 and the 150-pound championship of England. A detailed report of the affair will be received by cable in time for the next number of the POLICE GAZETTE.

If Frank Craig, the "Coffee Cooler," changes his mind about coming to America, he will have something to keep him busy during the winter. Dick O'Brien is crazy for a match with him and thinks seriously of going over if a match can be arranged for him. Dan Creedon, too, talks of going back if the "Cooler" evinces any inclination to take a return match, and last, but not least, Frank Slavin, who intends getting home before the Christmas holidays, will look for Craig directly he sets foot in London. The latter has been talking pretty loud since Slavin has been in America, and the latter is eager to even things up with a talk or a fight if possible.

MAULIFFE OUTBOXES CARROLL.

Gains the Decision on Points in a Ten-Round Contest.

(Special to the POLICE GAZETTE.)
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 20.—Jack Mauliffe, who has held the lightweight championship for many years, met Jimmy Carroll in a ten-round bout at the Woodward Pavilion to-night under the auspices of the St. George A. C.

It was the second time the men had come together in the ring in this city. The last fight took place at the California Club on March 21, 1890, and was one of the most scientific contests ever fought here.

For the bout to-night the club offered a purse of $3,000, and $5,000 was wagered on the side. In the betting Mauliffe was a slight favorite, the odds being 10 to 9 in his favor. He won on points.

BOXING AT THE GOTHAM A. C.

The Gotham A. C. gave its initial boxing bouts last Friday night at Sulzer's Harlem River Park, Second avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-seventh street. The opening bout was between Frank Zimpher of Buffalo, and Danny McMahon of Detroit, ten rounds at 118 pounds. The referee stopped the bout in the seventh round and awarded it to Zimpher. The second bout between Joe Fielden of England, and Bobby Doyle (colored) of Minneapolis, ten rounds, at 138 pounds, was also stopped in the fifth round, and was awarded to Doyle.

The final bout of the evening was to have been twelve rounds, at catch weights, between Henry Baker of Chicago, and Charley Strong of Newark. Baker was in no condition to box, and his seconds threw up the sponge in the tenth round, and the decision was given to Strong.

At the Bohemian Sporting Club last Tuesday evening an entertainment was given combining vaudeville and boxing. It was an experiment, but it proved a success. In the boxing events George Harrison defeated Jerry Kelly, six rounds, catch weights. The second bout, with the same conditions as the first, between Jimmy Russell and Frank Brennan, was a draw. The third bout between Frank McHugh and Jack Brennan, both of South Brooklyn. Fighting started in at once. Brennan boxed fast and knocked his opponent down four times. The referee stopped the bout and awarded it to Brennan. The last was between John Glynn, of Wilmington, Del., and Patsy Brodwick, of Providence, ten rounds, 115 pounds, and was declared a draw.

The following letter, in the way of a challenge from mysterious Billy Smith to Jim Ryan, the Australian pugilist, explains itself: "Sir—Of late I have noticed in the papers a great deal about Jim Ryan, of Australia, willing to box any middleweight or welterweight in the world, barring Bob Fitzsimmons. Sam Fitzpatrick, who is looking after the interests of Ryan, states that he is willing to find as much money as any other boxer can for the Australian boxer. I hope this is true, for I am sure I can pick up a few dollars that says I can beat Ryan. I am here training for my bout with Tommy Ryan, which takes place in the Empire Athletic Club on Nov. 25, and should I win, which I am confident of doing, I will only be too happy to take on Mr. Fitzpatrick's latest find. You can rest assured that the Australian won't have to go begging for a contest, no matter which way my bout with Tommy Ryan terminates."

"HONEST JOE" BURKE.

(WITH PORTRAIT.)

One of the foremost and conspicuous figures in turf history for the past decade is Joseph J. Burke, known to turfmen all over the country as "Honest Joe." Mr. Burke has for many years been closely allied to the executive affairs of the American turf, and in the capacity of presiding judge has occupied the stand over almost every race course in America. He is noted for the impartial character of his rulings and the correctness of his judgment. He is a terror to evil doers and his fearless courage in dealing with them is attested by the fact that crooked racing is a thing unknown upon the tracks where he exercises an official supervision. His character is that of a rugged courageous man, who is beloved by those who have nothing to fear and hated by those who have brought the American turf into disrepute.

Mr. Burke is now superintending the racing in California, filling the onerous position of presiding judge. He is an Eastern man, his home is in Brooklyn, N. Y., and before he was the recipient of official honors was a newspaper man and a writer upon racing topics.

BOXING IS NOT BRUTAL.

Roosevelt's Manly Criticism of the Maher-Choyinski Bout.

DR. PARKHURST'S APPROVAL

What Referee Austin Has to Say About the Recent Contest.

NOW LET THE GAME GO ON.

A needless amount of unfavorable criticism seems to have been occasioned by the fact that Peter Maher and Joe Choyinski sparred with gloves before 4,000 spectators in a club-house on Broadway. Whether the criticism would have been so generously given had not an accident occurred which abruptly terminated the exhibition or not, remains to be seen, but the lynx-eyed observers, who were on the qui vive for something to happen, jumped at the opportunity to describe the affair as a prize fight, and howl for the suppression of all boxing clubs and for a repeal of the law which countenanced their existence.

They even said harsh things about Mr. Roosevelt, the head and front of the New York Police Department, leading his official presence to the occasion and daring to express the opinion that he saw nothing that was not commendable and worthy of approval.

Mr. Roosevelt was courageous enough to express an honest opinion, and for doing this aroused the antagonism of an element which seems to find its sole occupation in condemning every legitimate, wholesome, honest sport.

In the interview referred to, President Roosevelt expressed himself plainly as follows:

"As for it being a brutal exhibition, when I was in Harvard and sparred for the championship I suffered a heavier punishment than any man there did, and I have been knocked out at polo twice for a ten times longer period than Choyinski was knocked out.

"I don't care very much for professional sport of any kind, but I thoroughly believe in boxing, exactly as I believe in football and other rough, manly games, and I think it the greatest mistake that decent people should ever allow the hard-hitting game qualities which make a man a man to be monopolized by the men who don't believe in decency.

"Wesley said, when reproached with choosing hymn tunes that had a swing to them, that he didn't believe in allowing the devil to have all the good music, and I don't believe in allowing the devil to have a monopoly of the qualities which make a man succeed in a rough-and-tumble.

"I was at the boxing match with Deputy Chief Cortright especially to see if the law was violated. One bout I had promptly stopped when it seemed to be verging on brutality, and throughout the conduct of the Deputy Chief met my heartiest approval.

"As I said, I don't care for professional sport at all, personally, whether it be boxing or horse-racing, but the boxing match the other night was conducted with entire regard to the requirements of the law, and there was no more cause for interfering with it than for interfering with racing at Morris Park.

"In closing, I wish again to say that I have the heartiest sympathy with any form of rough, manly, athletic sport, carried on purely for the sport's sake, from boxing to football and riding."

Nonplussed at their efforts to induce the head of New York's incomparable police department to signify his disapproval of boxing, the disturbers rushed off to Dr. Parkhurst, joyful in the expectation that he would of course say something to illuminate and lend color to their arguments. In this they were grievously disappointed, for instead of finding the eminent reformer in a mood to pounce down upon all forms of sport and doxy boxing as an invention of the devil, and one of his most prolific resources, Dr. Parkhurst signified his approval in a way befitting his dignity as a clergyman, but not the less forceful and convincing. He said:

"Boxing is a manly sport. It was a part of the games of the Greeks, and, when not degraded, is a noble sport. I would approve of a boxing contest, provided always that everything calculated to rouse the evil passions of all concerned were eliminated.

"If there could be boxing contests in which there was nothing brutal, I could witness it. I have never yet felt a desire to attend a boxing match, although I believe in athletic exhibitions where two men are evenly matched together in a trial of strength and skill, even where blows are exchanged, but not where the bounds of decency are passed.

"Mr. Roosevelt is much of an athlete, and a good deal of a fighter, yet I am not prepared to believe that he has approved, or would view except with disgust, anything approaching a prize fight.

"He stopped one contest, I understand, because of its brutality, and it was my impression that the principal contest, which he approved, was not marked by anything degrading. I am quite confident he is not in favor of a contest that would disgust right-minded people."

So much for the eminent gentleman who has done so much to purify and make the metropolis of America the most desirable abiding place in the whole world.

Another clerical celebrity, Rev. Dr. Geo. R. Vandewater, who has long been identified with reform movements in New York city, was actuated by the courage of his convictions to say:

"I have always considered prize fights, with the shedding of blood, as brutal and disgusting. But I can imagine," he added, "a scientific exhibition of sparring, even where a man is knocked senseless, that would not be revolting. I should be proud to see my son a principal in such an exhibition whether he was worsted or not."

Regarding Mr. Roosevelt's attitude, I can only say that I have known him for many years—knew him in college and have a great respect for his opinions. His actions have sometimes been the subject of adverse criticism, but in the long run he is generally right. I have not read anything about this particular exhibition, but if Mr. Roosevelt says it was not revolting I should respect his opinion."

The newspapers of the metropolis, with one or two exceptions, also endorsed the view taken by President Roosevelt. The New York Sun says:

"It is satisfactory to see that the head of the New York police department, the Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, preserves the balance of a sound-minded and able-bodied citizen toward the noble and serious art of sparring. It would be a pity if a bloody nose or a bruised cheek should be the cause of abolishing it in this enlightened metropolis."

The evening edition of the same paper expressed its views editorially as follows:

"Police Commissioner Roosevelt at an exhibition of the manly art of self-defense is the right man in the right place. No one is more competent to decide whether the Horton boxing law is being violated, and no city officer of whom we know is quicker with his hands and delights more in the clash and heat of battle. When Mr. Roosevelt was a student at Harvard he sought the gymnasium to put on the gloves with any one who was minded to try conclusions with him. Size and strength and even skill did not dismay him. Punishment he took with the cheerful smile with which gamblers pay tribute to the prowess of an antagonist. He was never ready to quit until the other man was willing, and many an aspirant for fistic honors untied his glove strings with the frank admission that the future police commissioner had been too much for him. Tradition says that when Mr. Roosevelt was a member of the Assembly at Albany he taught a lesson in good manners to some loafers who mistook him for a scented exquisite. Like the immortal George Borrow, who thought it no sin—devout man as he was—to trounce a ruffian with nature's weapons. Mr. Roosevelt believes in boxing as a test of self-control, pluck and fortitude. At the same time brutality is abhorrent to him.

"To the uninitiated and unpractised a bout between sparring gladiators may seem at times to verge upon the brutal. A blow delivered with the force of mighty biceps resounds like the flap of canvas in a gale, but it seldom hurts the body of the recipient as much as it jars the nerves of a sensitive spectator. The roiling boxer—who is 'grogy' in the parlance of the ring—is often more spent with the vigor of his own exertions than weakened by the attack of his opponent. In this condition the blow which renders him hors de combat is often a comparatively light one. A few minutes after the battle he is himself again and would be ready to resume it if the verdict had not gone against him. So far as physical ability is concerned, the football player after a hard game would be very glad to change places with him. Even the knockout blow delivered early in the bout is not as vicious as it looks, nor is it dangerous, if the victim be in sound physical condition.

"Although much can be said in favor of the Horton law as promoting the art of boxing, it would be well for the police to continue their supervision over the contests which take place with the sanction of the law. It is a fact which cannot be denied that many so-called lovers of this manly exercise take a low pleasure in witnessing exhibitions which are more brutal than scientific. The Horton law was not enacted to provide amusement for them, but to encourage a virile interest in boxing as distinguished from slugging and savagery. If the glove matches at any of the local clubs degenerate into merely brutal exhibitions the law should step in and stop the career of such clubs summarily."

And so they would be justified in doing and it is the sincere hope of everybody who has the welfare of the sport at heart that they will. Boxing, as it is practiced under the espionage of the police authorities, sanctioned by law and conducted by regularly incorporated clubs, controlled and managed by men of responsibility and experience, is nothing more than a contention with gloves between a couple of well-trained athletes, actuated by the spirit of emulation and a desire to excel which is commonly understood to be a predominant characteristic of the Anglo-Saxon race. Its opponents are for the most part fanatics who cannot or will not dissociate it from the reprehensible and disgusting elements of prize fighting. They decried as evil one manly pastime, while encouraging their wives and daughters to be spectators at a football game which is rarely played without sickening and disgusting results. The record of this year's fatalities upon the 'gridiron' is unparalleled. Several deaths have already occurred and the columns of the daily newspapers are filled with the record of accidental occurrences involving the breaking of limbs, the loss of eyes and ears and the permanent disabling of players.

Maher and Choyinski left the stage after their engagement without a bruise or blemish of any kind to show that they had been engaged

SHARKEY AND FITZ TO MILL

Matched for Ten Rounds in San Francisco, Dec. 2.

FIGHT FOR ALL OR NOTHING.

The Sailor Lad Evinces Confidence in His Ability to Win.

LANKY BOB IS THE FAVORITE.

San Francisco sporting men have a trifle the advantage of us in the effort to see the experience of having a pugilistic event between heavyweights arranged without the windy preliminaries for which they have become famous. On the day following Bob Fitzsimmons' arrival in San Francisco, and without any quibbling over the insignificant and trifling details which seem to involve the fine points of matchmaking, articles were signed for a ten-round bout with Tom Sharkey. As Bill Naughton, the Nestor of pugilism on the Pacific coast, afterwards remarked:

The experience, so far as the lookers-on were concerned, was a novel one. The public ear has become attuned to long-winded harangues and the belief has steadily gained ground that latter-day heavyweights have taken for their motto, "The jaw is mightier than the fist."

Fitzsimmons and Sharkey have agreed to box ten rounds for $10,000 on Dec. 2d, winner to take all. Records considered, it was a spunky thing for Sharkey to be a party to a contract of that kind. On the face of it it looks as if his share of the "all or nothing" will be the "nothing." In consequence hard-headed sports remark that Sharkey reminds them of the buffalo bull that tackled the locomotive—they admire his grit, but deprecate his judgment.

Pugilism is different from horse-racing and other forms of sport as in what some of our shilly-shally contemporaries denominate a brutal, disgusting affair.

Consistency is a jewel indeed.

FISTIC NOTES.

In Philadelphia boxing is cornered by the newspaper men. There are several able scribes in the Quaker city who are making a barrel of money out of the "pags," and no outsiders are let in any of the deals.

Jim Kennedy, of the Empire Athletic Club, will match the winner of the Tommy Ryan-Billy Smith fight, to be decided at Maspeth, Nov. 25, against Kid McCoy, the middleweight, returning from Johannesburg, South Africa.

In a recent interview Tom Sharkey said that I was he who invited first on the winner taking all in his forthcoming bout with Bob Fitzsimmons. He thinks that he will win, and if he fails it is his intention to retire from the ring.

Walter Johnson, the colored Philadelphiaian, who is rapidly coming into prominence through his cleverness, is a very stiff puncher and very shifty for a big man. Johnson's backer will try and secure a match for him with Joe Goldard when the latter comes to America.

Another bantam has sprouted out in New York. He is Jack Fogarty, just over from Ireland. He is anxious to meet Leon, Dave Sullivan or Patsy Haley at 105 or 108 pounds. Joe Elms can hardly make the above weight, and is the best man in the East to give the newcomer a trial.

John S. Barnes, who is now at the head of the Olympic Club, of Birmingham, Eng., is well known in this country. He was the man who endeavored to pull off the Jim Hall-Bob Fitzsimmons contest in Minneapolis a few years ago and failed. He is also well known in baseball circles.

At a middleweight contest at Johannesburg recently a sporting paper of the gold town named the following bunch of professionals, mostly arrived from Australia: Tom Dugan, Bill Hefferman, Artie Tully, Bill Dougherty, Joe Goddard, Ted Ryan, Mick Dooley—three heavyweights all claiming the title over Australia—Bill Edwards, Tom Denny, Barney Malone; also Denver Smith and Kid McCoy of this side.

few remarks on the form aspect of the case, and not an intimation that either will win.

GOSSIP OF THE RING.

After Patsy Haley's victory over Young Sisto of Boston last Monday night, Paddy Slavin, who is much impressed with Haley's prowess as a boxer, offered to take Haley to England with him when he goes, which will be some time next month. Haley is to give an answer this week.

Tommy Dixon, of Rochester, bested Johnny Whittaker, colored, of Kansas City, in nine rounds before the Connors Athletic Club, of Buffalo, on Nov. 17. Every round was fiercely contested, and it was anybody's fight up to the sixth round, after which Dixon had it pretty much his own way.

Whether Sharkey gets beaten or not in his contest with Bob Fitzsimmons, D. J. Lynch, his manager, says that he will bet $5,000 on his man in an encounter with Joe Choyinski. The latter has already signified his eagerness for such a match, and if arranged the bout will take place in San Francisco during February.

A sporting man says: "So Jim Corbett says that the Fitz and Sharkey fight will be a cut and dried affair. The purse, he adds, will be split, and the fighters will get a piece of the gate receipts. Corbett appears to know so much about the match that he possibly tried to make the same deal, and failing, threw the match up."

Tom O'Rourke deserves a great deal of credit for the manner in which he comes forward and says: "As matchmaker of the Broadway A. C. I don't want to have any part of a contest between Corbett and Fitzsimmons, and everyone can rest assured that the Broadway A. C. will never have Corbett and Fitzsimmons meet in its clubhouse."

Tom O'Rourke has received a letter from Bob Fitzsimmons, in which he said he was training industriously for his contest with Sharkey, and expects to defeat the Sailor in less than five rounds. Fitzsimmons has authorized O'Rourke to match him against any heavyweight in the world for a limited-round contest at the Broadway A. C.

Horace Leeds, the Atlantic City lightweight, had a talk with Jim Kennedy, a few nights ago, in regard to matching him to meet Kid McPartland. Kennedy agreed to do so and sent for Jack Dougherty, manager for McPartland. Dougherty refused to accept any offer made by Kennedy, and says he only wants to match McPartland against Kid Lavigne.

The great centres of the boxing industry at present are New York, San Francisco, London, Birmingham and Johannesburg, South Africa. Australia is free to the pugilists as it usually is, but there has been little doing there. In the Antipodes the public seems to have tired of boxing some years ago, and never to have regained the appetite, which is the reason of the dullness there.

Jim Kennedy, in speaking about the Bohemian Club's offer of $25,000 for Corbett and Fitzsimmons to fight for, said: "This is the greatest scheme to advertise a club so that new members will join that has ever been heard of before. Gensler imagines that by offering a purse of $25,000 that plenty of sporting men in this city will try to join the club, and, of course, be assessed $100."

The London "Sporting Life" says of the Smith-Smith contest before the National Sporting Club: "The hurricane style of fighting which the visitor adopted completely puzzled the home lad. Solly Smith's low hits were purely accidental." The "Sporting Life" says: "Willie Smith was merely a target. Solly Smith showed us what a difference exists between a natural fighter and an exhibition boxer."

"Parson" Davies, in a letter to the "Police Gazette," says: "I will match James Barry, of Chicago, champion bantamweight of America, against Johnny Murphy, at 115 pounds, weigh in at the ringside, the match to take place within four or five weeks from date. I trust I shall have an early acceptance. Barry can box much lighter than 115 pounds, but I learn Mr. Murphy cannot and do himself justice. I therefore name this weight."

Joe Gans whipped Jerry Marshall, the Australian colored featherweight, recently before the Eureka A. C. of Newark, N. J., although the defeated man lasted the twenty rounds. Gans has in a way, therefore, proved to the public that the decision which was given to Dal Hawkins was not a good one. Marshall, however, has no heart, but he proved much more game than the night he went up against George Dixon in Boston. This has been his first fight of any account since then.

At least three or four hundred sporting men, who journeyed to Brooklyn last Saturday night to see Joe Fishery and Kid McPartland box before the Brooklyn Bridge Athletic Club, had their trouble for their pains. Fishery did not put in an appearance, and the management failed to substitute another bout. This is not the first time this club has done exactly the same thing. They wanted McPartland to go on and box Mike Leonard or Tom Moriarty twenty rounds for $50. Such cheap clubs do much toward ruining the sport.

Although boxing has been running at a pretty stiff gait in the East since the advent of the Horton bill, they are looking for an increase of speed ever since the settling of the political caldron, says Joe Donovan, the Chicago sporting writer. One can see a glove contest almost every night in the week now in New York, and the prices in the majority of cases are moderate. It is said the demand for good talent is running ahead of the supply, though there is, counting natives and importations, a small army of gladiators about the metropolis.

Five four-round bouts of sterling quality were offered up to the many patrons of the Art Athletic Club, Philadelphia, last week. The wind up between Jack Ward, of Philadelphia, and Kid Murphy, of Cincinnati, was the fastest as well as the most uneven of the five bouts. Ward set to work on Murphy at the beginning of the first round, and used his right on the jaw with great freedom and effect throughout the first, second and fourth rounds. Murphy was only fairly effective in the third round, but he took his medicine gamely, and should in time learn to fight quite well.

Fitzgerald's Hall, St. Catharines, Ont., was crowded on Nov. 13 to witness the 10-round go between Paddy Nagle, champion lightweight of Canada, and Arthur Schram, champion welterweight of Canada and Western New York. Both men were in splendid condition, Schram having the advantage over Nagle in weight of about 1½ pounds. At the end of the fifth round the fight was a tame one, and the laurels were about even. From the outset Schram was the aggressor, Nagle playing mostly on the defensive. Nagle proved himself to be very clever, stopping Schram's vicious blows showered at him until time was called at the end of the last round. The honors were slightly in favor of Schram.

A desperate prize fight of seven rounds was fought early Sunday morning near Union Hill, N. J. It was between Tommy Kelly, the Hoboken cyclone, and Hugh McDonough, of Boston. The referee was a prominent saloonkeeper of Hoboken. More than 400 sports from Hudson County and New York attended. Kelly had the best of the fight and severely punished McDonough. McDonough made three palpable fouls in the seventh round, and Kelly's second stopping the fight, the referee left the ring without rendering a decision. The fight was made a draw by mutual agreement. Johnny Banks, colored, seconded Kelly and Fritz Johns, of New Bedford, was McDonough's second. The fight was for a purse of $200.

Mr. Catlin, Sr., has long been identified with rowing affairs in America and has long represented the West in all conventions of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen. Young Mr. Catlin is also greatly interested in amateur rowing affairs, and is a member of some of the most exclusive boat and social clubs in Chicago and elsewhere. He is an enthusiastic oarsman and has participated in many races with a fair amount of success.

HERE YOU ARE, TICHY.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Nov. 16, 1896.
MR. RICHARD K. FOX, Esq.—Dear Sir: Having read in your great paper, which is always on file in my shop, of a man named Tichy, I take pleasure in informing you that I know him. He says he can shave a man in 52 seconds. Well, if he can I will give him $50. He might cut the sole of a shoe in that time, but he could not shave one of my customers. So if he would like to make $50 I will give it to him if he can do it. If he wishes to match me for a hair cut, three styles, quickest and best, I'm waiting for him.

I wish you would please publish this in your paper and oblige one of your steady readers.

Very respectfully, THONY MOUNTNEY,

IN THE BOWLERS' CORNER

News and Gossip of Interest to the Pin Knights.

NEW CLUBS ORGANIZED.

Good Bowlers Refuse to Roll on Bad Alleys in New York.

BIG TOURNAMENT IN BOSTON.

George Scanlan, of the Lobster Bowling Club, Brooklyn, is apparently getting into form. In three successive practice games last week he rolled 241, 220 and 207.

Charles Shafer, proprietor of the Washington street, Buffalo, N. Y., bowling alley, will present a $75 bicycle to the man rolling the highest score on his alleys up to Jan. 1.

The Bright Stars won six consecutive victories in the Capitol tournament at Brooklyn, and up to last week held the lead, although the Adelphi are pushing them hard, having met with only one defeat out of six games rolled.

Wolf defeated Silver in their match on the alleys at 127 Meade street, Brooklyn, recently, rolling six games, with scores as follows: 212, 227, 216, 201, 196 and 201, and the friends of the latter never had a chance to applaud.

The Quebec Club, of Quebec, Can., is the latest, with a membership of 318. This organization owns five alleys, and on the team this year are four of the St. Rock Club's (of Buffalo, N. Y.) best members. Capt. Talbot will manage the team.

The Cincinnati Club still heads the list in the Cincinnati, O., League tournament and up to last week the West Ends were second, Pastime third. Forbriger, of the Buckeye team, is credited with high score, 225, having made that total in the Buckeye-Pastime game last week.

No less than six clubs were tied for first honors in the Brooklyn National tournament up to the end of last week, namely: the Manhattan, Belvidere, Apollo, Linden Grove, Nady and Monarch. Name your price and take your choice for winners of this tournament.

As a result of the trouble in the Germania tournament, Brooklyn, over the case of Mr. Naeger, who rolled with the Brooklyn team, the Brooklyn have sent in their resignation. Some of the members of this tournament say if it had not arrived the club would have been expelled.

A new alley, which is regulation in every particular, has been built in Toledo, O. J. W. McCormick, a prominent bowler and Messrs. J. and J. Dittmar scored the highest totals for the Germania, while S. Schluter and J. Ecker rolled 203 and 202 respectively for the Seniors. The rest of the evening and early morning was passed introducing themselves to each other.

The bank clerks have accomplished the desired effect with their open dissatisfaction at the condition of the New York Hotel alley where they are rolling their tournament series this year, and the management of the hotel has requested a week to make improvements. There was a strong talk of transferring the remainder of the games to Jake Thuman's Gansevoort street establishment, and Jake would have gladly welcomed them.

The Buffalo, N. Y., Alley Owners Association at a meeting held recently decided on the following prices for their tournament, besides the $100 for individual prizes, and another $100 for high averages, the amount divided among the first five, makes first prize worth $125, second $100, third $80, fourth $65, fifth $50, sixth $35, seventh $20, the amounts graduating down to $25, which the last five teams of the twenty-one first will receive.

The Annexed District again renews with that low rumbling sound of the wooden sphere as it works its way down the different alleys on its way to the head-pin (or the corner). Above the bridge they are talking bowling. This simple avocation to the ordinary human being is sufficient, but for fear there may be a few people who take an interest in New York's affairs above the Harlem and do not quite catch the drift of this, it is well to say that anything talked of in that locality is as good as accomplished.

Boston, Mass., has certainly captured the most important tournament announced so far this season. Clubs will represent cities a long way from the Hub, and this competition bids fair to be of international importance. Messrs. Nick Tye, Elwood Silver, Robert Menninger, A. Paulsen and Joseph Wingenfeld will represent Brooklyn, while Sam Karp will manage the team. Mr. Warren Dow, of the Boston Globe, is managing the affair, and deserves great credit for his untiring efforts to make it a grand success.

Interest in the North Chicago, Ill., Bowling League tournament increases with the rolling of every scheduled series. The Hoodoes, who have set the pace so far, defeating the Standards and Keystones, two of the strongest organizations of the League, hold a safe lead, and up to last week had not lost a game. Aside from the standing of the clubs considerable interest is manifested in the individual averages, as five substantial prizes are offered for the best work in twenty-five games or more. Schoenck, of the Hoodoes, starts the week with an average of 205 5/8, and Kline, of the Standards, follows him closely with an average of 200 1/4 to his credit. The latter holds last season's championship.

DINED IN RED BLOOMERS.

[SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION.]

The habitues of a well-known cafe on Market street, San Francisco, Cal., were treated to a sensation the other afternoon when a plump young woman, whose nether limbs were encased in tight-fitting red bloomers, walked in with her escort and took a seat at a table. She took the matter very coolly, but her friend was very nervous. They remained in the place half an hour, long enough for everyone to get a good look at her shape, and then they left.

of that city, is organizing a club with the intention of meeting the representatives of New York and Brooklyn next January when the last named clubs travel West.

The first fifteen clubs that meet in the Uncle Sam Tournament at Frankie's alleys this season won and lost a game, and while the scores have not been large the interest has not lagged owing to the fact that the teams being so evenly matched the results have been won with close margins in most cases.

The Elmside Club is the latest organized and meets Saturday evenings at St. Mary's Hall alleys. The officers for the year are: President, Thomas Walsh; vice-president, William McFarley; secretary, A. Low; treasurer, E. McDonald; captain, P. McDowell. They start with a membership of thirty.

The Philadelphia are cutting a wide swath in the Brooklyn Royal Arcanum tournament. Not only do they hold the high score, but are rolling top-notch games right along against the Bushwick and East New York teams. Their scores were 893 and 815, Martin being credited with 245 in the first and 215 in the last game.

The Spartans seemed hoodooed in the American National tournament at Joe Thum's Bowery alleys. It makes very little difference what score they roll as they have won and lost every meeting so far this season. Under these conditions they would save time and labor if they succeeded in winning the first to forfeit the last game.

Gardenville, N. Y., furnished a match game between the local club and the St. Mary's of Buffalo, that has set the town practicing. It was the first half, the second will be rolled on the latter's alleys. P. Sell, of the Gardenvilles, carried off the honors for his team with an average of 174, while Capt. Bongers topped the averages of the St. Mary's.

The champions of last year in Kansas City, Mo., the Acme Club, are rolling in excellent form. In their last encounter with the Electric, in the Kansas City tournament, they came out victorious, with the comfortable margin of 203 pins. This club is tied with the Owls and Missouris for first place. Mr. Householder, of the Stock Yards, holds high score to date.

The Annexed District League tournament has started on Ebling's Casino alleys. Low scores have been the rule the first nights, the exception being the games of the College and Melrose teams, they rolling scores of 888 and 912 respectively on the occasion of their first appearance in this competition. Six clubs roll each night and the friends fill this popular resort.

On Conway's new alleys, Jersey City, N. J., a match was rolled last week between the Seniors and Germanias. Mr. H. Smith
